MGMT 579 A/B - POWER AND STATUS DYNAMICS IN THE WORKPLACE (4 CREDITS)

INSTRUCTOR:	Elijah Wee
CLASS MEETS ON:	Mondays & Wednesdays, June 23 – July 23, 2025 (A-term)
TIMES:	6:00 – 9:30 pm
ROOM:	PCAR 293
PREREQUISITE:	None

Course Description:

Unfortunately, talented leaders who do not fully appreciate power and status dynamics in their organizations often face rejection, regardless of the quality of their initiatives and ideas. Organizations are political environments that can hinder as well as help you. This elective is designed to help you make things happen for yourself and others in the workplace, despite the obstacles of being powerless or less respected that stand in your way. In this course, we will learn and experience concepts that are central to our understanding of how power and status function in organizations. We will achieve these objectives through guided self-reflections, group activities, and skill-building exercises. Through this course, you will develop your own personal pathway to these two important social currencies in the workplace.

Course Objectives:

1. To broaden your perspectives of power and status in the workplace.
2. To develop your personal strategies to navigate issues of power and status in the workplace.
3. To appreciate the dynamics of power and status so that you can impact lives and organizations meaningfully.
